

from American Fork Thursday, visiting friends.

The people of the second ward gave a pleasant night in honor of Elder W. H. Brown, who will leave in a short time as a missionary to Australia.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Irvine entertained the club last Monday. Dainty refreshments were served. In the game of cards, Mrs. Grant, C. Hagley was the winner. Mrs. Grant and Mr. Bert awarded the gentlemen's prize. The winners were Messrs. and Mesdames E. W. Wood, W. D. Roberts Jr., A. D. Sutton, Rob. R. Irvine, Sam Schwab, Grant C. Bagley and Levi Bachman. Mrs. Sam A. King, Misses Miriam Nelson and Beulah Bachman, Messrs. Phil Speckart, Ben Schwab and Bert Twelve.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Daniels Jr. and family have moved to the city from their ranch in Spanish Fork canyon, with the intention of spending the winter at their home in the city.

Mrs. Thomas John entertained a few of her friends at dinner last Monday in honor of the visit of her cousin, Mrs. Lillie Horsley, of Brigham City. Mrs. John served a delicious dinner and the occasion was one long to be cherished in the memory of the guests. Those present were: Mesdames Lillie S. Hardy, Hannah C. Tucker, J. M. Jensen, Ida Pay, W. Hyde, J. C. Knudsen and Sallie Holt.

Mrs. Charles McCord arrived Thursday from New Jersey, where her husband, Rev. Charles McCord, is taking a post graduate course in one of the colleges. Mrs. McCord will remain for some time visiting her parents, Judge and Mrs. A. A. Noon.

The class of 1903, Brigham Young academy, gave a delightful ball Wednesday evening in room D which was tastefully and profusely decorated with evergreens and flowers, with the class colors red and yellow, with "1903" prominently and artistically displayed in an electric light decoration. A very large number of friends of the class were present, including guests from Salt Lake City and other towns. Members of this class who are not attending the academy, on account of being engaged in teaching or other vocation, made it a point to be with their classmates on the occasion. Delicious refreshments were served and the ball was one of the great social events of the academy.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gronemann gave a wedding reception Thursday night in honor of the wedding of Miss Ida Peay and Mr. John H. Durrant, and Miss Ida Peay and Mr. John Peay. Many relatives and friends of the newly married young people were present and were most socially and generously entertained. The evening passed with the customary wedding festivities, including a sumptuous supper. Mr. and Mrs. Durrant and Mr. and Mrs. Peay, are highly respected young people with a host of friends, who wish them a bright and happy future.

CLUB CHAT.

The absorbing event in club circles just now is the movement instituted by the Ladies' Literary club for giving the art exhibition for the benefit of the public schools. The event will take place the second week of December and already the century pictures are on the way here for the exhibition. There will also be an exhibit of a large number of plaster cast designs of famous works in Grecian art from the Hennecke company in Milwaukee. In addition to these pictures which took prizes at the Art League exhibition will be displayed and lectures upon art will be given by Mr. Culmer, president of the league, and Prof. Hayes, while Mrs. W. C. Jennings will give talks upon Grecian art. The event will be held at the Ladies' Literary club.

The tourist section of the Ladies' Literary club will meet on Tuesday next at 10 a. m. The program for the meeting will include a paper by Miss Kimball, on "The Hague and Amsterdam." Mrs. Buckford will tell of "Schneelinger and his Fisheries," and Mrs. Gallagher of "Ostend, Haarlem and Leyden."

The Shakespeare section of the Ladies' Literary club will meet on Wednesday at 10 a. m. The last act of Coriolanus will be studied, with special reference to the characters of Coriolanus and Volturnus, and the Roman people. Estimates of the play made by the great Shakespearean critics will be discussed.

Yesterday was reciprocity day at the Ladies' Literary club, the clubs of the city being invited to attend. An excellent program was given, the participants being Mrs. Coulter of the Federation and Mrs. Hillard of Ogden. Mrs. Coulter's subject was reminiscences of a personal visit to the West Indies, and Mrs. Hillard read a paper on the "Coming Economic Revolution." A large number of members of the various clubs responded to the invitation, and the event being a notably pleasant and successful one.

OHIO CASHMERE WAIST.

Cashmere and many wool materials besides flannel have come to the fore this season for separate waists. This stylish model in dahlia cashmere has a tucked front and is trimmed with white braid, outlined with gilt braid and with small slit buttons.

Culmer on Tuesday, the program being the reading of Acts III and IV of Hamlet. Critical comments on the play were given by Mrs. Edna Sloan.

The Reapers' club met in the Woman's Exponent office, Templeton, on Monday, Nov. 26th. Mrs. Annie (P. Hyde) gave an interesting paper on the Life and Works of Ralph Waldo Emerson. This was followed by a general discussion and report of current events.

The Poet's Round Table met at the residence of Mrs. Stanley H. Clawson on Monday, the poet for the day being Ella Wheeler Wilcox. Mrs. W. H. Dale was chairman and Mrs. J. D. Spencer gave the biography reading. Among them were Elbert Hubbard, East Aurora; A. B. Colvin, Glens Falls; Mrs. T. K. Beecher, Elmira; Senator A. H. Gallinger, Agnes Repplier, Rudolph Blankenberg, Mrs. E. L. Blackwell, President Woman's club, Orange, N. J.; Mrs. Johanna Hartshorn, President State Federation of Women's clubs, New Jersey; Mrs. E. B. Warner, president Delaware Federation Women's clubs; Miss Adele M. Field, Mrs. Henry Sanders, Mrs. Herman, vice president Little Mothers' club; Mrs. Russell Sage, Mrs. M. J. Schieffelin, the Rev. W. S. Rainsford, W. D. Howells, all of New York, and a long list of Boston men and women, including James C. Fiedler, Abby Morton Diaz, and Prof. Ellen Hayes, Wellesley college. A beautiful booth will be that of California, which will be decorated with the California people, seeds of which will be on sale at the booth. Mrs. Barnes, the wife of the governor of Oklahoma, is the latest contributor to the galaxy of gubernatorial dolls.

An interesting event to club women is the organization of a class for parliamentary practice, whose initial meeting was held at the home of Mrs. W. A. Nelson on Monday. The membership is, however, not restricted to club women, but all who may be interested are cordially invited to join. The class will meet twice a month, the next meeting to take place on the afternoon of December 10th. At the meeting on Monday Mrs. Nelson was elected chairman and Mrs. Douglas, secretary.

The list of patrons and patronesses for the bazaar of the National Woman's Suffrage association grows constantly. Among them are Elbert Hubbard, East Aurora; A. B. Colvin, Glens Falls; Mrs. T. K. Beecher, Elmira; Senator A. H. Gallinger, Agnes Repplier, Rudolph Blankenberg, Mrs. E. L. Blackwell, President Woman's club, Orange, N. J.; Mrs. Johanna Hartshorn, President State Federation of Women's clubs, New Jersey; Mrs. E. B. Warner, president Delaware Federation Women's clubs; Miss Adele M. Field, Mrs. Henry Sanders, Mrs. Herman, vice president Little Mothers' club; Mrs. Russell Sage, Mrs. M. J. Schieffelin, the Rev. W. S. Rainsford, W. D. Howells, all of New York, and a long list of Boston men and women, including James C. Fiedler, Abby Morton Diaz, and Prof. Ellen Hayes, Wellesley college. The Consumers' league of New York is calling attention, as is its wont, at this season of the year, to the practical way in which women may relieve the pressure upon shop employees during the carrying of holiday business. It is urged that Christmas shoppers finish this buying as early in the season as possible, and take great pains to give correct addresses, spelling out names that are in any way peculiar. "Others have to exist," says a member of the league, "an impression that only the saleswomen in the large shops need consideration. Every employee deserves it, and particularly the overworked men and boys of the packing and delivery rooms. A woman sometimes, in the rush of Christmas shopping, has been known to make a ten-cent glass vase her only order in a shop. If she does this she should take the responsibility of carrying it home. As a rule, however, she orders it sent, which means several handlings, elaborate packing, etc., all thoughtless and unnecessary trouble to a train of employees. If women buy of holiday business, it is trifling bulk at this busy time that will be a small concession to carry them away." Mrs. Nathan, the president of the league, tells interestingly of her personal protest against delivery after six o'clock. She began it two or three years ago, and at first the drivers indignantly resented her refusal to receive a parcel after the specified hour. Over and over again she would be called to the door by her maid, and she refused to receive the parcel. The delivery clerks could at first see only that the parcel must be brought again, but after a while they discovered what it would mean to them if every woman refused to receive purchases after that hour. Instead of driving over the streets often till nearly midnight, they would be able to finish their work at a reasonable time. Mrs. Nathan has persevered in her stand, with the result that no parcel is ever offered at her house after six o'clock. It has needed some small sacrifice and persistent systematizing of her own shopping, but in this, as in other reforms which the league advocates, individual non-conformity derangement of usual procedure means great benefit to a large number of persons. "Take home small parcels, do not shop after five o'clock, use transfer cars to facilitate business, take pains to give addresses plainly and correctly, and use all the forbearance possessed during the next four weeks, is the way the league epitomizes its suggestions for Christmas shopping.

One of the resolutions adopted at the recent convention of the Assembly of Mothers at Buffalo has provoked a good deal of comment among club women and other women. This was to the effect that the Assembly believed that nature has decreed that the husband shall be the bread-winner of the family, and considered the tendency of women to seek occupations outside the home detrimental.

Pride of Japan is just the thing: Peace on earth and mercy mild— Two cups for a man and one for a child.

Primal to family life. As one woman commented: "Undoubtedly the gist of this resolution was merely to call attention to the multiplication of persons which now seems to crowd almost every woman and was not intended as any radical declaration against the woman bread-winner or the club woman. The criticism that I should make of the resolution is that it was unnecessary. Women who go to extremes of any effort are cured presently by their very overwork, and are usually taught conservatism of effort because they have been too radical. The club movement and all other enterprises that engage women's attention at the present time are settling and righting themselves. They are assuming their true proportion in the industry of life, and it is only the weak ill-balanced woman who needs the caution embodied in this resolution. She needs looking after any time, and the sensible sisterhood who make up the majority should not be called to account for her faults."

The success last year of the prize exhibition on domestic science lines which was held in Chicago under the auspices of some prominent clubwomen of that city, was so pronounced that it has been made a permanent event. The second exhibition was held last week, and fully equalled if not surpassed the first in attendance and interest. A slight difference was made in some of the details of arrangement for this year, one being that the prizes were given to the best cookery of all classes in domestic science were admitted, the committee asking instead for samples of cookery that can be prepared in the home. Money prizes were offered for the best cookery of all classes for laundry work, mending and menus. In addition, medals were offered to any housekeeper who had been in the service of one employer from ten to twenty years and who, last year there were over thirty contestants in this class, the prize going to a woman who had lived in one family for over thirty years. One of the interesting features of the affair was the attendance of a table with marked prizes attached to the Bureau for Nurses which the association has established during the past year. This bureau has been especially efficient, and is one that the association is proud to have marked. The nurses are supplied for the rate of $7 to $15 a week, and though not trained professional nurses, they come well recommended from two doctors and one patron, and supply a much needed want. They are as valuable as the high-priced trained nurses in all convalescent or mild cases, and in families where these high prices cannot be afforded. Another feature of the exhibition was a table with literature on household economics; at this too was sold a cook-book prepared by the association, containing receipts contributed by well-known women. Over three hundred applications to enter displays were received, and the pleasant rooms of the Chicago Woman's club, offered for the occasion, were thronged day and evening. The promoters hope by the interest they show in domestic science, as one of them has said, "to teach girls we are all home-makers and that domestic science is a fine art, and that to do work in a refined family is better than to work in a factory."

FEMINE FLOTSAM.

The Art of Talking Well.

It is better to be frankly dull than pedantic. One must guard one's self from the temptation of "talk shop" and of riding one's "hobby." Whatever sets one apart as a capital "V" should be avoided. A joke or humorous story is dependent upon its form of appreciation. Some emotions will not bear "warming over." It is no longer considered good form to say a word against anyone. An ill-natured criticism is a social blunder. Gossip, too, is really going out of fashion.

True wit is a gift, not an attainment. Those who use it aright never yield to the temptation of saying anything that will wound another in order to exhibit their own cleverness. It is natural and spontaneous. "He who runs after wit is apt to catch nonsense." Talk that has heartiness in it and the liveliness and sparkle of wit, is a fairly good substitute for wit.

Offer to each one who speaks the homage of your undivided attention. Look people in the face when you talk to them.

Talk of things, not persons. The best substitute for wisdom is silence. It is a provincialism to say "yes, sir," "no, ma'am" to one's equal. Have convictions of your own. Be yourself and not a mere echo. Never ask leading questions. We should show curiosity about the concerns of others only so far as it may gratify them to tell us. Draw out your listener without catching him. Correct him, if necessary, without contradicting him. Avoid mannerisms.

Strive to be natural and at ease. The nervousness that conceals itself under affected vivacity should be controlled, and should be shot the loud laugh—Mrs. Burton Kingsland in the Ladies' Home Journal.

On Being Presented.

There are various fads and fashions which people adopt in shaking hands from time to time, and among very young people this is perhaps more noticeable, as, for instance, the fashion which was in vogue some years ago of holding the hand very high up and lifting it like a pump handle in the air while shaking.

Another stupid fashion consisted in grasping the hand very low down and bending the body while so doing. All these things are more or less extreme fads, and there is nothing more agreeable than a cordial, warm handshake, and, strange to say, it is not often met with.

People are too apt in this country, where handshakes do not prevail, to forget how to shake hands, and when obliged to do so they extend a feeble, limp palm into your hand, which you are glad to drop almost as soon as it touches yours; or they shoot the loud laugh—Mrs. Burton Kingsland in the Ladies' Home Journal.

and think what a cordial, nice person you must be meeting, says the New York Herald. Hostesses are always expected to shake hands when receiving their guests. It is not customary in New York, and, indeed, in the North and East, where manners are more formal and less cordial, to shake hands when meeting a person, especially a man, for the first time at a dance or ball. The English custom sometimes prevails here, however. When meeting anyone in a private house, as at a dinner, etc., it is quite correct, if you so choose, to shake hands, but generally an introduction requires only a bow and a few words of greeting.

She Tamed Her Husband.

I dare say that there isn't a woman on earth who hasn't a theory on the subject of how to manage a husband, and I have never yet come across a man who was any the worse for a little scientific handling now and then. If I were in the florist business I'd send a palm to a certain senator's daughter, who has set an example managing wives might follow with profit. She has a husband, this senator's daughter, who is disposed to be critical. Most of his friends are men of great wealth, who live extremely well, and association with them has made him somewhat hard to please in the matter of cooking. For some time the tendency has been growing on him. Scarcely a meal at his home (table passed without criticism from him).

"What is this meant for?" he would ask after tasting an entire life wife had racked her brain to think up. "What on earth is this?" he would say when dessert came on.

"Is this supposed to be a salad?" he would inquire sarcastically when the lettuce was served. His wife stood it as long as she could. One evening he came home in a particularly capricious humor.

His wife was dressed in her most becoming gown and fairly bubbling over with wit. They went in to dinner. The soup tureen was brought in. Tied to one handle was a card, and on that card the information in a big, round hand:

"This is soup."

Roast beef followed, with a placard announcing:

"This is roast beef."

The potatoes were labeled. The gravy dish was placarded. The olives bore a card marked "olives," the salad bowl carried a tag marked "salad," and when the ice cream came in, a card announcing "This is ice cream" came with it. The wife talked of a thousand and different things all through the meal, never once referring by word or look to the labeled dishes. Neither then or thereafter did he say a word about them, and never since that evening has the capricious husband vented his spleen.

How to Cure Croup.

Mr. R. Gray, who lives near Amelia, Duchess county, N. Y., says: "Charles Remedy is the best medicine I have ever used. It is a fine children's remedy for croup and never fails to cure." When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has developed, it will prevent the attack. This should be borne in mind and a bottle of the Cough Remedy kept at hand ready for instant use as soon as the symptoms appear.

Worms take refuge in the small intestine, where they can easily multiply. WHITES CREAM VERMIFUGE will destroy these parasites. The verdict of the people tells plainly how well it has succeeded. Price, 25 cents. Z. C. M. I. Drug Dept.
